

I strongly object to the proposal that implementation of "broadcast flag" support be mandatory in consumer video equipment supporting the HDTV standard. The FCC should not implement rule making to satisfy the special interests of media conglomerates against the best public interest of the citizens whose communications infrastructure it is tasked with protecting for their benefit. Do NOT mandate compulsory compliance with the broadcast flag for HDTV transmissions. This is anti-consumer and an infringement on rights granted to US citizens under existing copyright law.